The Professional Photographers of America (PPA) recognized David Stevenson as a Certified Professional Photographer (CPP) in 1983. At that time, he was one of only 1700 photographers worldwide to attain this level of achievement.

David's innovative and artistic style is well documented, being the recipient of the prestigious Kodak Dreammaker Award for his image titled Midnight Blues. Boston Globe highlighted his work in an article about children and family photography entitled, "Moving Pictures." Past clients have included Fidelity Investments, Master Card International, Volkswagen, and numerous New England sports and TV personalities.

Although David's portfolio includes landscapes, architectural details and still life, his specialty is in the area of fine art portraiture and children's heirloom portraits.
